

REDS HAIL GREATEST BRITISH DEFEAT IN CENTURY

Hore-Belisha Lashes at Chamberlain

Bold Attack Is Delivered

Ex-War Minister, Who Urged Troops to Aid Finland, Demands Formal Debate

London, March 13 (P)—A demand for a formal debate on Britain's "whole conduct of the war" came from Leslie Hore-Belisha, recently dismissed war minister, as he made a bitter attack on the government in the House of Commons today in a stormy debate on Finland's capitulation to Soviet Russia.

Hore-Belisha, whose ouster last January 5 never was fully explained but who is known to have advocated dispatch of a British expeditionary force to Finland before he left office, asserted that British refusal to supply more help was based on "a pure technicality."

Prime Minister Chamberlain declined to say immediately whether the proposed full dress debate would be allowed, but trustworthy unofficial sources said such a debate would be held March 19, at which Chamberlain would present a general war review and reply to questions of an aroused house.

Hore-Belisha entered today's discussion after Chamberlain had praised Finnish resistance and both labor and liberal leaders joined in expressing admiration for the Finns and deplored what they called another triumph for aggression.

Chamberlain faced a sober parliament anxious to question him on last night's Moscow peace, in which Finland ceded to Russia more territory than was demanded last fall, and in particular to debate Britain's part in the Russo-Finnish war.

Defends Help

Chamberlain defended Britain's help to Finland. He expressed the nation's "admiration for the courage" of the Finns and repeated that "we had more preparations to throw the full weight of all available resources into the scales on hearing that this was in accordance with the desires of the Finnish government."

Hore-Belisha criticised the government for delaying sending men to Finland until requested by Finland to do so. Britain and France had disclosed they were ready to send troops immediately if Finland should ask for them.

Hore-Belisha wanted to know if it was not a fact that repeated appeals had been made by that country for assistance in material and men."

Chamberlain denied that "repeated requests for men had been made by the Finnish government" and declared that every request for materials was answered and Finland was told that Britain was prepared to send men also if they appealed for them.

David Lloyd George, the white-haired world war prime minister, declared that "in my heart I am glad of the news" from Finland, but continued:

"But it is the old trouble—too late. Too late for Czechoslovakia. Too late for Poland. Certainly too late for Finland."

"It is always too late or too little or both. That is the road to disaster."

Only yesterday Premier Daladier of France declared that Britain and France had 50,000 troops fully equipped at two ports ready to embark immediately if Finland should call.

In the circumstances in which they found themselves, however, the Finns decided not to make such a request, Chamberlain said.

Hore-Belisha, dissatisfied with the Chamberlain statement on Finland, asked for a full commons debate "in the light of these events on the whole conduct of the war."

Chamberlain declared in reply to a question that "at no time did we threaten the neutrality of Sweden." Sweden's neutrality was presumed to have been involved in the question of transporting British troops to Finland.

Hore-Belisha's request for a debate brought a shout from some member on the labor bench, "and discuss you too; you want us to fight the world."

When others asked about a debate Chamberlain replied, "that's not a matter I can discuss across the floor of the house."

Viipuri, Third City of Finland, Goes to Russia With Other Concessions

Above is a view of the harbor of Viipuri, an important Gulf of Finland port which goes to the Soviet under the peace treaty.

Map indicates high spots of the Soviet-Finnish peace treaty announced in Moscow. In the large circle (1) are the Karelian Isthmus, Viipuri and the shores of Lake Ladoga, all of which go to Russia. Also shown (Sawtooth Line) is the famed Mannerheim which the Reds get. Russia gained a 30-year lease on Hanko (2), Finland's "Gibraltar," and the far Northern Srendi and Rybachi peninsulas at (3), just north of Petsamo. Further, Russia gets the privilege of free transit to Norway via Petsamo. During the year, a railway will be built from Kandalaska (4) in the direction of the dotted line to Kemijarvi (5). The latter city is the eastern terminus of the rail line (shown) which now runs to the Gulf of Bothnia. Russia also gets a slice of northeastern Finland not defined on map.

Finns Quit in Bitter Disillusionment in 'Promises of Others'

Tanner Says Lack of Arms and Faith Forces Surrender to Foe 50 Times Size of Finland; Gloomy Tears Follow Official Statement

Helsinki, March 13 (P)—Weary Finland, lacking weapons and skeptical of foreign offers of help, ended her bitter three-and-one-half-months' struggle against Soviet Russia today by yielding more soil and economic and military independence than demanded before the war.

At 11 a. m. (4 a. m. E. S. T.), the dogged, courageous Finnish army stopped fighting, and a gloomy peace settled over the battlefields, from the corpse-piled Karelian Isthmus to icy Lapland.

Beginning Friday, the Finnish troops will retreat at the rate of seven kilometers (about 4.5 miles) a day to narrowed frontiers fixed by the treaty signed at Moscow last night.

The treaty still was subject to formal ratification by the Finnish diet within three days.

It was officially announced this afternoon that War Minister Juho Niukkanen and Minister of Education Uuno Hannula had resigned from the government because they

Big Loan Probably Will Be Used to Help Rebuild War-Torn Nation

Washington, March 13 (P)—The belief prevailed in the capital today that Russo-Finnish peace would not affect the recent $20,000,000 loan to Finland by the Export-Import Bank, but would enable the money to be used in sending troops immediately if Finland should ask for them.

It is the old trouble—too late. Too late for Czechoslovakia. Too late for Poland. Certainly too late for Finland.

"It is always too late or too little or both. That is the road to disaster."

Only yesterday Premier Daladier of France declared that Britain and France had 50,000 troops fully equipped at two ports ready to embark immediately if Finland should call.

Financial and Commercial

Staple Markets
Irregular Tuesday

With exception of the utilities, stocks opened higher Tuesday, advanced still further with trading at the rate of 210,000 shares the first hour and continued to gain until afternoon, when the trend became downward. The close was irregular, with changes from the previous day small. Intimation that the Russian-Finnish negotiation had ended in an agreement are said to have been responsible for changing the course of the market. Industrial stocks as measured in the Dow-Jones averages showed a gain of nearly a point at noon, but they closed at 148.37, up .22 point for the day. Rails showed a loss of .05 to .30 and utilities declined .03 to .24. Total volume for the day was 880,600 shares, best since February 9, when total was 1,099,340. Aircrafts and heavy industry stocks affected by the war lost ground on the peace agreement rumors. However 66 stocks made new highs for 1940 during the advance while 28 made new lows.

A sharp upturn in Danish, Finnish and Norwegian bonds featured the bond market Tuesday. Republic of Finland has made a new high, jumping 15 points, to around 70. Danish and Norwegian issues also made new highs. Staple markets were irregular Tuesday, with foreign uncertainties and British exchange regulations affecting trading, the index losing .13 point for the day. In the cotton market the March position was down 10 points but other deliveries closed one higher to four lower. Peace negotiations affected the wheat market which was erratic and closed one to 1% cents a bushel lower. Rubber futures closed with moderate advances.

Abroad, principal stocks on London market advances, rail and industrial averages closing higher. Amsterdam prices showed gains with the American list turning firmer. Paris Bourse was fractionally higher.

The final step in terminating affairs of the Fisk Rubber Co. and removing the name from the stock list was taken yesterday when stockholders voted 344,208 shares to 100 to dissolve. The company was sold on December 9 to the U. S. Rubber Co.

Chairman Sloan of General Motors sees in the current decline in industrial activity "simply an adjustment following the rapid increase of the last six months of last year."

Report of the O. & W. R. R. shows net loss of $175,292 in January, after taxes and charges. Year ago the loss was $125,577.

The Commerce Department reports January shipments to South America totaling $38,566,000, more than double the $18,695,000 reported for January, 1939. It is stated that merchandise sales to Latin America have been increasing steadily since the European war interfered with shipments from usual European supply sources.

G. O. P. Ignores Budget Veto and Kills More Bills

The measures passed the Assembly yesterday.

Although voting with the majority, Republican Senator Thomas C. Desmond, Newburgh, pleaded for further peace conferences between Governor Lehman and the legislature designed to end party bickering over the budget.

"We should stop trying this matter in the newspapers," he asserted.

Cessation of the battle over the $391,700,000 budget focused attention on the ways and means committee's appropriation-killing action.

Approved measures and sums requested include proposals to:

Continue the state flood control commission, $17,500; require a semi-annual inspection of motor vehicles under state licensing, $100,000; appoint boards of inquiry in labor disputes, $2,500; establish state soil conservation committee, $1,000; extend to March 15, 1941, life of the commission to study state health conditions, $45,000; create a commission to devise methods of giving information on labor disputes, $7,500; and compel registration of merchant truckmen, $5,000.

The motor vehicle inspection at a 50 cent fee by garages licensed by the state was expected to bring $260,000 revenue and the registration of truckmen, $40,000.

Reports Bills

The committee also reported favorably bills carrying no appropriation which would permit conveyance to the federal government of state property to be used for flood control purposes on the Whitney Point project, and permit maintenance of a scientific crime detection laboratory in the state police division.

Major appropriation items relegated to the legislative graveyard would have restored last year's cuts in state aid for education by $9,798,975 in one bill and $4,000,000 in another, spent $9,000,000 in New York city slum clearance projects, and $325,000 for administration of a three per cent sales tax.

Aside from Syracuse and Utica, no construction already provided for in the budget, similar building plans were rejected for Rome, $250,000; Hempstead, L. I., $150,000; Astoria, $500,000 and Auburn, $350,000.

A proposed $1,250,000 depot for housing motorized equipment of national guard regiments in New York city was turned down.

A bill which would appropriate $2,000,000 for establishment of state-owned and operated automobile inspection stations also was killed with a proposal to spend $150,000 for compulsory motor vehicle insurance.

Completing a public airing of a measure designed to range employers' tax rates between one and a half and three per cent on jobless insurance benefit payments according to their employment record over a three-year period, legislators reported prospects of a vote on the measure are "strong."

Employers' spokesmen advocated substitution of the present three per cent tax on total payrolls carrying four or more persons for the merit rating plan as an unemployment preventive. Organized labor and the state administration cautioned against immediate action "lest it ruin the whole system."

Council Adopts 2 Pension Laws by Ballot of 10 to 3

Pension bills last evening both bills will now be sent to Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who, under the law, is required to hold a public hearing on both bills before signing or rejecting them.

No other matters came up and the council adjourned.

Crowd Attends Cooking School

Approximately 350 women crowded into the auditorium of Craft's Super Market, Inc., Tuesday afternoon to attend the opening session of the second annual cooking school sponsored by the Craft organization.

Under the personal direction of Mrs. Bertha M. Harris, nationally known lecturer and home economist, the first session of the school, lasting three hours, featured a discussion of every phase of cooking, and during the course of Mrs. Harris' remarks, two complete steak and veal dinners were prepared, and several pies and cakes were made.

Another feature of the school which was the target of many praising remarks was the display and demonstration sponsored by M. Reina, local General Electric dealer, who supplied the modern kitchen which is used by the lecturer.

Sessions of the free cooking school will be held on Thursday and Friday of this week and every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the following three weeks at the Craft market at 59 O'Neil street. All women are invited to attend.

Car Fire Is Extinguished

Robert A. Slater of 75 Hurley avenue, finding the upholstery in the back seat of his auto on fire shortly after 6 o'clock Tuesday night, drove to the Central Fire Station where the firemen extinguished the fire by use of pyrene.

Requests More Help

Helsinki, March 13 (P)—President Kyosti Kallio of Finland sent a cable to Herbert Hoover today asking that American help for Finland be continued.

Reds Hail Great Defeat of British peninsulas on the Arctic Ocean; a railroad to be built this year to link Russia's White Sea ports with the Gulf of Bothnia;

Operation of a Russian airline across the Petsamo district between Russia and Norway and no restriction on passage of Russian citizens or commerce across this area;

A promise that no Finnish warplanes, warships or submarines, except for small coast guard boats, will operate in the Arctic Ocean.

In return, the Finns get peace and a yearly rental of $8,000,000 Finnish markka (about $120,000) for Hanko.

They must negotiate a trade treaty and make a non-aggression alliance with Russia. (Russia denounced the previous non-aggression pact just before invading Finland November 30.)

Russia's original demands, which the Finns had refused, were much less severe. They offered Finland part of Soviet Karelia on Finland's long eastern border in return for a small strip of the Karelian isthmus northwest of Leningrad; a lease on Hanko; part of the Sredni and Rybachii peninsulas; and exchange of some islands in the Gulf of Finland.

The new, drastically-revised frontiers are outlined in a map appended to the treaty, but detailed determination is provided by a mixed commission to be formed within 10 days.

Other Concessions

Listed specifically in the treaty as concessions to Russia are the towns of Sortavala, Suojarvi and Kakkilai north and west of Lake Ladoga; the territory east of Kemi-jarvi near the Arctic Circle, and the town of Kuolajarvi on the Salla front.

These localities have figured in the war news in connection with reports of smashing Finnish victories over the invading Red army.)

The lease on Hanko also would include a number of nearby islands and the adjacent waters, the Finns to withdraw within 10 days.

The Arctic Petsamo area, occupied now by Russian troops, is to be relinquished to Finland with the provision that Finland will establish no military or naval bases in the Arctic and that Finnish warships there must not exceed 15 of 400 tons each and any number of 100 tons or less.

The Finns would have to build during 1940 a railroad from Kemi-jarvi to the Russian border to connect with a Russian line to be built from Kandalaska. (As the border is now drawn, two-thirds of this 150-mile distance is in Finland.)

This route would connect with the present railroad from Kemi-jarvi to the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, and the treaty provides the right of Russian transit over it to Sweden.

The treaty would restore automatically trade relations between Finland and the Soviet union, with a formal trade pact to be negotiated.

No-aggression is provided in the following clause:

"Both contracting parties undertake mutually to refrain from any attack upon each other, not to conclude any alliances and not to participate in any coalitions against one of the contracting parties."

The treaty was drafted in the Russian, Finnish and Swedish languages.

Tass, official Soviet news agency, said the treaty was signed Tuesday, superseding its previous report that six days of negotiation were concluded at 2:30 a. m. Wednesday.

Crowd Attends Cooking School

Approximately 350 women crowded into the auditorium of Craft's Super Market, Inc., Tuesday afternoon to attend the opening session of the second annual cooking school sponsored by the Craft organization.

Under the personal direction of Mrs. Bertha M. Harris, nationally known lecturer and home economist, the first session of the school, lasting three hours, featured a discussion of every phase of cooking, and during the course of Mrs. Harris' remarks, two complete steak and veal dinners were prepared, and several pies and cakes were made.

Another feature of the school which was the target of many praising remarks was the display and demonstration sponsored by M. Reina, local General Electric dealer, who supplied the modern kitchen which is used by the lecturer.

The 1940 Townsend bill is considerably changed from that of 1939. These changes will be explained tonight.

THE FARMER'S TROUBLES

The United States Census Bureau in a recent pamphlet points out that a part of the farmer's troubles is due to the fashions of the times. This is a fact not often enough taken into consideration. Frequently, reference is made to the fact that the farmers put too many acres under cultivation during the World War and have been unable to get down to a peace-time level. It is pointed out further that the other nations of the world are seeking to become as self sufficient as possible and this has decreased the American farmer's foreign markets.

All this is true but we must not forget what has happened to the farmers' home market. It is true, of course, that when jobs are found for the ten million now idle, there will be a greater demand for food-stuffs, because the American family "eats better" as the family income increases. So we must take into consideration the change in fashions during the past generation.

If you are not old enough to remember how great this change has been, just visit the next motion picture production which hearkens back to the old Bowery days and note the different chassis which the average woman and the average man had at that time. Curves and corpulence were the prevailing style. The average chorus girl gained beauty with poundage and her non-professional sisters went in for curves too. And the average man didn't try to remain athletic looking after he arrived at the age of forty. In fact, the prosperous looking banker or professional man had to look sleek, fat and corpulently imposing to hold the public confidence. And, those fat politicians!

This fashion meant that the American people went in for the eating of substantial foods in quantities. Cream, butter, potatoes, and white bread were not taboo. Now note the difference. Nearly everyone you meet is on a diet, and how many women are there who are content with a few lettuce leaves, a whole wheat roll and a cup of weak tea for lunch? Weight is regarded both as unfashionable and unhygienic. Perhaps our sisters are right about it but—right or wrong—they have certainly played hob with food production along certain lines in the United States—all over the world for that matter.

The Census Bureau points out that the short skirt has played a mean trick on the cotton consumption in the United States. The average girl now wears a skirt of knee length and only one of them at a time. It is said that knee length styles cut the demand for cotton by a million bales a year. Less food and fewer and scantier clothes—here are conditions which have affected agriculture in the United States. And the mechanized age has played its part, too. With the work formerly done by horses and mules now performed in a goodly part by automobiles, trucks and tractors, there is a less demand for animal food such as oats, corn and hay.

The question to be asked is, naturally: What are we going to do about it? There seems to be little chance of ending the mechanical age, and women's fashions and men's styles are hard to change. Perhaps the easiest thing to do will be to find new uses for what the farmer raises in this era of manufacturing. Here is where our chemists and other research experts come in handy.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

March 13, 1920.—Mayor Palmer Canfield announced that plans had been completed for the police department to take census of Kingston to check federal census figures.

Ice in Rondout creek at Eddyville began to break up.

Jacob Jacobson of St. Mary's street died.

Death of Mrs. Archie Mac Intyre of Prince street.

Elias E. Miller, Civil War veteran, died at his home in Ellenville.

Death of Mrs. Benjamin N. Crispell of Hurley.

Official presentation and opening of the Kiwanis Dental Clinic in the municipal building to the board of Education marked the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club. The presentation on behalf of the club was made by the Rev. O. E. Brandoff, and Harry H. Flemming accepted on behalf of the education board.

Ernest Line died at his home in High Falls.

Death of William Slater of Rifton, aged 51 years.

The lowest temperature recorded by The Freeman thermometer was 29 degrees.

Helena, Mont., (P)—A defendant charged with selling liquor to Indians learned something about American law when he appeared before Judge James H. Baldwin in Federal District Court and pleaded guilty. The judge, after talking to him, declined to accept the plea. Instead he postponed the trial and appointed an attorney to defend the man. Under the United States Constitution, said the judge, the defendant was entitled to legal counsel. There was a question whether his car, alleged to contain whisky, was searched legally.

Somewhere-in-France, (P)—Economy notices plastered up throughout the British Expeditionary Force's area in France urge soldiers to "fight waste as you would fight the enemy." Reminding the men in the field that they will have to help pay for the war in the end, the notices ask them to avoid extravagance on the "easy come, easy go" principle. Britain's war is costing around $28,000,000 a day.

Kings Canyon National Park, adjacent to the Sequoia National Park, covers 454,000 acres of some of the wildest and most beautiful scenery in the United States. Part of it is unspoiled wilderness.

Its canyons, though somewhat like those of Yosemite, are different in detail. Their walls are loftier and more rugged. Tehipite Dome is higher than the famous El Capitan.

New parks in the East, Shenandoah and the Great Smoky, had the most visitors last year. They lie in a populous part of the country and are newly opened. But there are national or state parks and forests in every section of the country and the public shows approval and appreciation by steadily increasing its use of them.

ANTI-WAR POETRY

Edwin Markham, a good gray poet who has just passed away at the age of 87, leaves not only some excellent poems to remember him by, but some good ideas.

He had been waiting, he said, for a poem which he hoped some younger man would write before his death. It would be "the greatest poem of all time."

"That," he explained, "would be five or six stanzas which would disperse the armies of the world. If I had the time, the youth, the strength, to write one great poem, it would be against war. If I could have one wish fulfilled, it would be for a poem that would expose the mockery, the futility, the utter sterility of war, in such a way as to warn every man who loves the world and humanity to watch vigilantly against war."

There have been great war poems, but they were poems inciting to war or celebrating the glories of past wars. Can there be poems powerful enough to stop or prevent wars? Here is a challenge to our young poets today.

"Wearing hats is a test of civilization," says a professor. All right—look at these women's hats and give us a verdict.

Wouldn't it be nice if Hitler and Stalin would take a sabbatical year and go fishing?

HOW TO LIVE AS LONG AS YOU CAN

In these days of motor accidents and epidemics of flu followed by pneumonia, no physician would attempt to predict the life span of his patients. He can tell them in all truth that if they will keep their weight down to, or slightly below, average, they will likely live five to ten years longer. If, in addition to keeping their weight down, they will try to live within their means, try to avoid excitement, and not eat large meals, he can promise them even a few years longer of life.

Why can the physician predict or promise a longer life span to those who will faithfully try to follow the above suggestions?

The figures of our insurance companies are compiled from the histories of thousands, in fact, hundreds of thousands of individuals and they reveal the fact that, past the age of thirty, every extra pound of excess fat cuts down the life expectancy of the individual by 1 per cent. Thus, an individual 30 years of age, 10 pounds overweight with a life expectancy of 40 more years, if he does not reduce his weight, will, on the average, cut four years from his life span. These figures apply to the entire group of overweights some of whom might cut off more or less years, but the average shortening of the life span is 1 per cent for each pound of overweight.

Some Joke, Eh? Well, This Police Chief Fooled 'Em All

Warren, N. H., March 13 (P)—Mrs. Dorothy Clark, an old-fashioned mother of four who was jokingly elected New England's only woman police chief a year ago, fooled the jokers by doing her job so well that admiring townspersons re-elected her by a wide margin.

The 34-year-old woman, blonde and blue-eyed, surprised the voters last year by accepting the post in the first place and gave them another surprise by beginning strict enforcement of the law. She made many arrests but her vote-getting ability was not impaired and she was re-elected on the first ballot at yesterday's town meeting.

"I am death on the illegal sale of liquor," she says. "I don't believe in gambling. I don't smoke, either."

Husky Mrs. Clark—she weighs 185 pounds and brags about it—managed two homes for a while during her first term, one here and one at nearby Campton where her husband was employed on a government timber project.

The voters also elected her overseer of the poor in this town of 650 persons yesterday over the strong opposition of the incumbent.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Tomi goes to Allen's office to consult him about her budget. When she suggests a salary for Pierre Prudhomme, Allen offers to pay him off with a swift kick.

Chapter 14 Dotty Dougherty

THE flush in Bartell's face grew deeper as he took a night letter from his desk and handed it to her.

Tomi read it, a pleased smile appearing. "Why, this is splendid. Fine character and he was reared on one of the greatest of all frog farms. I don't see why you took such an attitude towards him?"

"It's what the telegram didn't say," Bartell explained.

"But what else could it say?"

"Aside from giving a cut and dried report, the only human word in it is his nickname, the Shiek."

Tomi's laugh rang out. "Why, Allen Bartell, I believe you're jealous! That's right, Lily did make a play for him, didn't she?"

"Lily!" blurted Bartell, then quieted. "That's an idea," he murmured. "All right, Miss Toland, again you've asked for it. I'm going to comply with everything you've asked for, providing you place an advertisement in the Times-Star for a housekeeper immediately."

Tomi extended her hand, and Bartell met it with a firm clasp. "Friends?" he asked.

"Until we meet next time," agreed Tomi, and left.

She fairly flew to the street. The hotel was only two blocks away, but she must telephone. She did, from a drugstore, then learning Pierre would meet her there, wandered restlessly among the books in the library nook.

No one of these gaily jacketed books held a story as exciting as hers. She could hardly handle Bartell! And without a belaying pin. Some day, perhaps, she could make him sit up and beg.

Prudhomme appeared, matched Tomi's gay spirit with his own, and they hurried to place a housekeeper advertisement in the newspaper, then stopped next door at Ole's to drink to their success, in coffee. Tucked away in a booth, secure from curious eyes, Tomi felt they were arch conspirators.

"I'm surprised and relieved," Pierre confessed. "I didn't think Bartell would come through."

"Why?" asked Tomi.

"Well, after all, that ten thousand was a gift to him. The less he spends, the less he loses, providing you don't win out in the end."

Tomi's eyes were wide. "How did you know about the will and the terms?" she asked.

Pierre shrugged. "I get around," he explained. "The will was pretty thoroughly discussed by the newspaper, wasn't it?"

"I wouldn't know," mused Tomi thoughtfully. She hadn't read the western newspapers.

"You don't mind my knowing this?" Pierre asked, blue eyes anxiously surveying her. "I want to be a real help to you. I'd like to see a girl like you win out against that—against such heavy odds," he corrected. "I think it's sporting of you to accept the challenge."

Tomi warmed to the young man. Then he too had seen the will as a challenge.

"Tell me, as a ranaculturist, what chance have I of winning?" she asked.

"I could say every chance in the world," he returned. "I'm not going to. You have an even chance. The farm is run down. You have no established markets. You can always sell to the canneries, but not at the top market price, as you'll have to consider the shipping."

"You have one thing in your favor—the time. However, that will be of more advantage next year than this. And I am confident that I can help you materially. First, I'll have to learn more of the climatic conditions. I'll go to the weather bureau tomorrow and check average daily temperatures."

"But what have temperatures to do with frogs?"

"Everything. Frogs are fussy, as your Old Abe says. If it's too cold, they go down and delay the spawning season. If it's too hot, they deteriorate so their meat becomes stringy and flabby."

Tomi laughed. "Don't tell me you are going to do something about the weather."

Zooming Spirits

PIERRE laughed with her. "But I am. Your pools are shallow, not like the deep bayous in the South where the frogs can find the temperature they want. I can build shelters, plant vines and shrubs to give them shade and to shade the pool."

He talked on of the changes he would make and Tomi, listening, rejoiced at having found him. He was going to be well worth his salary. And then she wondered at him accepting a salary as low as the one she was offering.

"Why did you take this position?" she asked, abruptly.

Pierre smiled at her. "Because I wanted to see what I could do. I'm like an architect who finds an old, well-built house and wants to bring it up to date. My father's farm is definitely his. But then you know the French."

Tomi was satisfied. He helped her into her car, then stood, held up, while she drove away. He would "bunk" with Old Abe after the housekeeper was installed. Until then he'd remain at the hotel.

And now Tomi's spirits zoomed and circled with the silver-winged ships. Of course she didn't agree with Pierre. Allen wouldn't withhold money she needed. He wanted

Cutty Sark Sales in U. S. Show 25 Per Cent Rise

Sales of Cutty Sark Scotch increased during 1939 over 1938, rising 25 per cent alone in the year's final quarter, J. F. Schlesinger, president of the Buckingham Corp., told the annual meeting of the board. The meeting was held in New York city rather than in London which is customary.

Consistent newspaper advertisers, the president announced that a larger newspaper advertising campaign would be launched. Despite unsettled conditions and difficulties imposed by war, it was stated that shippers have assured that ample stocks would be supplied and no price increase is anticipated. The extra costs would be absorbed by the Buckingham Corporation.

The report covering conditions in London was forwarded by Berry Bros. & Co., whose products are distributed in the United States by the Buckingham Corp.

Miracle

Bloomville, N. Y.—E. W. Simmons, machinery dealer, picked up a letter—with a $200 check attached—and read:

"This should pay my debt to you."

When Simmons checked his ledgers, he found that the writer had left town in 1922 owing him $114. The check took care of that, the letter said, "plus interest."

Best Policy

Gary, Ind.—A man walked into the public library, handed Librarian Ralph Shaw a book and said he'd stolen it in 1927.

Then he asked Shaw what else he could do to make up for the theft.

"I've joined the church," the stranger said, "and this is one of the things I want to make right."

Shaw took the book and told the stranger he'd done all he could.

In the event of an automobile liability verdict for $20,000 the second $10,000 insurance would be worth just as much as the first $10,000 yet it would have cost you only slightly more than the minimum, for the rate per thousand decreases as the amount of coverage increases.

The object of these bills, said Democratic Assemblyman Arthur Wachtel, Bronx sponsor, "to prevent unscrupulous milk dealers, particularly the larger ones, from manipulating their accounts and juggling inter-company deals so as to play the farmer and consumer against the middle and come out with hidden profits at their expense."

The measures would:

Require statements by milk dealers as to their milk sales, especially inter-company transactions.

Provide for a compulsory uniform system of accounting by dealers on the cost of country-handling, transportation and distribution of milk.

Authorize cities to operate plans for purchase, sale and distribution of milk.

Other bills introduced would:

Create a state debt and appropriate $21,000,000 for eliminating grade crossings in New York city and $15,000,000 for similar upstate projects outside Buffalo and Syracuse.

Appropriate $2,500 to the state

Balloon Endangers Planes

Akron, O., March 13 (AP)—A "runaway" balloon endangers airway traffic four hours last night as it drifted 200 miles, finally settling at Kittanning, Pa., 50 miles northeast of Pittsburgh. Airliners scurried to high altitudes to avoid a skyway collision. The 75-foot, torpedo-shaped balloon, owned by the Goodyear Aircraft Corp., ripped away from a ground crew here while being brought down from an altitude test. Five men sighted the bag drifting to near Kittanning and managed to bring it down by looping the dangling guide ropes around a tree.

Workers on farms at the beginning of 1940 totaled 8,641,000—about 1 per cent less than last year—reports Roger F. Hale of the Agricultural Marketing Service.

To Present Pageant On Easter Sunday

On Easter Sunday evening "The Holy Sepulchre," an Easter pageant of great inspiration and beauty, will be presented in the First Reformed Church. The play is by Lyman R. Bayard who is well known for his fine dramatizations. The setting of the presentation covers the events of Good Friday through the Resurrection and also an epilogue which takes place about 40 years later. The speaking cast is made up of 31 characters and the musical cast of 20 voices. The costumes are beautiful and authentic. Special colored lighting effects add greatly to the effectiveness of the pageant as a whole.

CONCERT BY NOTED ARTIST CALLS FOR EVENING CLOTHES EVEN IF HELD IN GYM

The Town, the Performer, and the Seats Are the Three Factors To Be Considered

The town, the artist and the seats are the three factors to be considered when answering the question, "What shall we wear to a concert?" The following letter adds another angle: "Our school is having a nationally-known singer here to give a concert, which is to be open to the townspeople as well as to the students. The gymnasium is to be used because it will hold the largest number of people. Will you please tell us what we should wear at this concert—eveling clothes or day clothes. The fact that the concert is in a gymnasium makes some of us feel that evening dress may be out of place."

In answer to this, the gymnasium background has no importance. The audience should wear evening clothes in honor of the singer, not in honor of the room! It is probable that the most important school dances are given in the gymnasium—at least they are, usually—and on these occasions no one would think of wearing "gym" clothes, or even sports clothes! Those in the best seats "down front" would be expected to wear best clothes, in order to help make the occasion a smart one. Those in less conspicuous back rows could be free to wear plainest day clothes.

Wives and Other Husbands

Dear Mrs. Post: At a large public dinner, on which side of a man should his wife be seated?

Answer: Neither, because a wife is not supposed to sit next to her own husband at a dinner—unless you mean that this husband and wife have bought two tickets and are going alone? In this case, they would of course sit together, she on his right if this is possible. At the head-table—or any other seated with place cards—married people are always, according to etiquette, separated.

Let me again remind certain wives who occasionally protest against this separating of wife and husband rule that it does not mean a husband may not even prefer to sit next to his own wife. It merely means that, according to best social practise, it is considered much more encouraging to the exchange of ideas—in other words, conversation—if two people sit next to each other who see each other less frequently than it is quite naturally taken for granted that a husband and wife do.

To Serve Artichokes

Dear Mrs. Post: What is the proper time during the meal to serve artichokes? I have noticed that there are special plates for serving them and this leads me to believe they should be served as a separate course.

Answer: They are served either before or after the meat course.

sometimes in place of the fish, sometimes in place of the salad, sometimes between meat and salad—exactly as asparagus with hollandaise sauce is served as a separate course.

Philadelphian Is Final Speaker at Rural Conference

The closing address of the rural church conference, held at St. James Methodist Church Monday and Tuesday, was given by the Rev. Dr. A. H. Rapking of Philadelphia, superintendent of town and country departments of the Methodist Board of Home Missions. It dealt with "Building the Kingdom of God in the Countryside," and was characterized as one of the outstanding addresses of the two days meeting.

Dr. Rapking said that the first step in building the kingdom of God was to get a picture, a clear conception of what was intended to accomplish. Both experience and knowledge is needed. "What would change," he asked, "if the prayer, 'Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done,' was answered?" He continued, "the soil would be improved, there would be better homes, a better Grange hall, a better school."

"It is a program that takes in all life," he said, "with God at the center." It would recognize the will of God in relationships, in the home, in neighbors, in every avenue of life. "Helping folks grow here into kingdom builders is building the kingdom of God here. Working out right relationships between the spiritual and the material is building the kingdom."

Dr. Rapking maintained that progress was being made, that the kingdom of God was coming more and more all the time, but that as long as human beings exist there will be the kingdom of God as an ideal. He saw as an illustration of the fact that progress is being made, the slowing up of the war on the western front, due to the weight of public opinion against war.

Gives Summary

Miss Margaret Harris gave a brief summary of the work of the conference. She saw in the attendance of so many prominent leaders a hopeful sign for the rural church. She referred to the many practical suggestions that had been made and the helpfulness of so many views on questions under discussion. Miss Harris said that it seemed to be agreed that the job of leadership in church work goes far beyond the church walls and that special emphasis had been laid on the need of trained men in the work. She had sensed a deep spirit of devotion, a feeling of wonderful friendship and a spirit of hopefulness during the deliberations and discussions.

The Rev. Orville Bosley, general chairman, expressed the thanks of the group to Dr. Carroll, Miss Dravis and the trustees and members of St. James Church for their fine hospitality and courtesy to members of the conference.

Many Denominations

The Rev. Henry J. Rood, registrar, presented a record of the denominations represented by the 56 registered delegates. They included Lutheran, Reformed, Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist, Episcopal, Jewish, one

Purser Is Injured

New York, March 13 (AP)—One man was injured when the 278-foot yacht Moana, owned by tin-plate heir William B. Leeds, was rammed by drifting coal barges early today in the East River at 51st street. Francis Hennessy, 32, the yacht's purser, suffered lacerations as he attempted to tie the barges to the yacht. The barges drifted upstream after a hawser parted as they were being unloaded at a 49th street dock. Leeds, who was aboard the yacht, was unaware of the crash until the crew told him. Damage was slight.

Two Are Injured Slightly In Accident at Glenford

Myron K. Morse, 46, of Halcott Center and his father, Alonso J. Morse, 79, received minor injuries and their DeSoto sedan was badly damaged when it went over the bank opposite the O'Brien gas station at Glenford about 5:45 Tuesday afternoon.

The Morses, with Myron K. driving, were returning home after attending a Farm Bureau meeting in Catskill. Opposite the O'Brien place the car struck a sheet of ice on the road and went out of control. It shot across the highway, struck a heavy concrete culvert marker and then went over the snow bank into a five foot ditch. The entire front end of the car was badly damaged and the car was towed in to the Doc Smith garage.

Deputy Sheriff Wesley O'Brien treated the men at his home for slight injuries, the elder Morse having sustained a cut on the bridge of his nose, while his son had a cut on his chin and bruised his chest when he was thrown against the steering wheel.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and going" again. Take one Little Liver Pill by name, 10c and 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

The Y-Stag Club held a Chow Mein supper last evening at the M. C. A. with 40 or more young men in attendance. Guests of honor were L. DeHart, chief machinist's mate, and J. McGuire, chief boatswain's mate, recruiting officers of this area stationed at the post office building.

Three reels of movies as produced by Pathé News and Paramount were shown. The movies depicted the battle cruiser Tuscaloosa in her various stations and a trip from port through the Panama Canal to the Pacific ocean.

The second reel took in the enrolling and graduation of a submarine sailor. This phase was most interesting in demonstrating all of the latest developments in safety devices as put out by the United States Naval Department.

In reel three the new arm of the navy, the airplane, was shown. The training and developing of lots at Pensacola and further development on water and land in the seaplane, lighter, and bomber. The dinner by the Stag Club was arranged by Al Melville and committee.

The recruiting officers are at the post office building from 9 a. m. until 2 p. m. every Thursday. They attended the dinner through arrangements made by Tom John.

Coddington Gets Suspended Term

Leigh Coddington, 27-year-old hay buyer of New Paltz, was given a suspended sentence of 1 1/2 to three years in Attica prison and a three-year probation period by County Judge Donald H. Grant at Coopersburg c. Monday. Coddington last week admitted indictments charging second degree grand larceny and the passing of worthless checks in connection with hay deals he had made in Otsego county.

Restitution was announced in court that day as having been made by Coddington's mother, who resides in Kingston.

"You owe a great obligation to your mother, who has kept you this time from an Attica prison term," Judge Grant reminded Coddington, in passing sentence, "and one particular condition of your probation is that you give no more checks when you don't have the funds to meet them."

"See how much weight I've lost!" says Mrs. Slim, displaying her loose skirt to Mrs. Hefty. Alas, Mrs. Hefty's dresses just get tighter and tighter.

But she'd lose also, as much as 2 pounds a week, if she'd follow Mrs. Slim's plan—a 3-day liquid diet to start reducing, then slimming low-calory meals.

And how pleasant the 3-day liquid diet is! You simply plan your housework so you can relax for a few days, then settle down to a regime of refreshing drinks every hour or so. Orange, grapefruit, lemon, pineapple, prune and tomato juice—as well as tea and coffee—are on your list.

After this preliminary cleansing you go on a tasty low-calory diet. No danger of "starving." Just avoid such bulge-makers as breaded veal cutlet (250 calories), canned corn (200 calories, 2/3 cup),

Spencer Girls Trim Moran's, 12-3

In a recent girls' basketball game the young women from Spencer's Business School defeated the Moran quintet by the score of 12 to 3.

The winners, playing effective ball all the way, were sparked by Frances Gehr and Eleanor Roach, who gleaned 10 of the 12 markers. Miss Gehr found the twine for six, while Miss Roach collected four. Thelma Tucker chipped in with the other two chukkers. Winfield scored the lone three points for the losers.

From the start the speedy and effective Spencer five displayed superiority over the Moran cagers. While Miss Gehr and Miss Roach did the point-making for Spencer's Alice Vining, Thelma Tucker, Virginia Dodaro and Shirley Goosdell divided honors with their stellar floor play. Moran's Winfield, besides collecting her team's three lone markers, showed up well on defense.

Ellenville, March 13 — Dorothy Marl, 13, daughter of Otto Marl, of Cragmoor, was reported in fair condition today at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital where she was taken for treatment of injuries suffered in a coasting accident near her home late yesterday afternoon.

From her sled on which she was riding with her 18-year-old cousin, Elizabeth Marl, the girl suffered lacerations of the scalp, face and tongue. She was rushed to the hospital by her sister, Lina, who was near the coasting hill at the time of the accident.

Those who saw the accident said that Dorothy was tossed from the sled against some ice formations after the sled struck a snowbank. An X-ray taken shortly after the girl's arrival at the hospital revealed no skull fracture, but the lacerations were reported of a dangerous nature. Many stitches were required to close the more severe cuts.
